

Lisa Grzyb

Bristol, Vermont

Lisa loves books and loves her students and loves introducing them to each other. She offers choice reading to every 9th grader all year long. Students choose from books based on world geography and Lisa would love to offer them more. Lisa also offers book groups in her elective courses. All of her students (current, former or future) know that they are more than welcome to grab a book from her burgeoning classroom library. She does her best to match a book with a student that both resonates and might be a bit outside of their comfort zone/something they might not pick up, but that can reveal new layers to our world.

Lisa is working on her masters in Lit at Bread Loaf School of English, which has provided new reading opportunities for her students. She is working through her 20th year of teaching.
