

Jennifer Street

Raleigh, North Carolina

Jennifer is a National Board Certified Teacher in her 19th year in the classroom, currently at Enloe Magnet High School in Raleigh, NC. She teaches every type of learner, ages 14-18, from intervention English I to Advanced Placement Research. Across the board, Street urges her students to interact with reading, whether it's fiction or informational text. She pushes them to ask questions, follow their curiosity, and make connections between what they're reading and the ever-changing world around them. Her focus as a teacher is to make reading accessible, to build student confidence and aptitude. This generous grant will allow her to buy more books that speak to young readers, that fire up their love of reading, and help them see themselves represented in text. As of May 2023, her intervention English I students have read over 120 books and are already making their requests for new titles. This grant is going to enable her to stock her shelves with additional engaging titles they can't wait to dive into.
