Atlanta, Georgia

John is in his third-year teaching special education at Kennesaw Elementary in Metro Atlanta, Georgia. He has lots of experience working with early learners with Autism and Emotional Behavioral disorders. He has a big passion for creating a literacy rich environment that gives young readers the opportunity to explore diversity and inclusion through reading. His dream is to continue to build a library that gives students the access to literature that fosters their creativity and interests and to nurture his students' love for reading.

Mr. Lukus enjoys reading to his class and making stories come to life with animation and imagination at the core. With the use of a Book Love Foundation grant, he plans on building his classroom library to continue to foster the love of reading and making his students life-long readers.
